

IN THE CLAIMS:

1. (currently amended) A golf putter having a head at one end of a shaft and a grip at the other end thereof, wherein said head is provided with ~~a guide that has a bar projecting from the back an~~ outer guide comprising a bar projected from a back thereof in a ring shape or U shape substantially parallel to the horizontal plane and an inner guide comprising a retention body projected in the same horizontal plane as the outer guide, said head being further provided with a weight having a fixation means, which is movably retained along an arcuate path formed between the outer guide and the inner guide ~~that is movably retained along said guide, and a fixation means for fixing said weight in any position.~~

2. (canceled)

3. (currently amended) The golf putter of ~~claim 1 or 2~~ claim 1 wherein said fixation means comprises a female screw hole provided in said weight and a male screw to engage with said female screw hole, and the head of said male screw has a slot to engage with the thickness of a coin currently in use.